“ The photo shown was taken at Fair Oaks Mall, in Virginia. At the time, he was working for Sears. He worked in various departments during his time there, before he started his own business. When he came home from work, he seldom had much to say about his day. It was good, it was bad, not much more. But when he worked in the Lawn & Garden department, he often came home with stories. New plants had come in, a big new fountain had come, some crazy rig that needed to be put together had arrived. He loved those things. He saw them as projects; they weren't work, they were just fun. In this photo, he was fiddling with a new fountain, trying to adjust the spouts which shot the water up at the main part of the thing. This photo reflects a happy time for him.

Jesse I am truly sorry for the loss of your father. He was a wonderful kind man and was very fond of my sister Sandra when they worked together at Sears for many years. He was an amazing computer programmer. May he RIP with our lord and savior.
