“ I have known Trieu for 15 plus years, we often talked about our federal jobs and retirement. When I retired he said I will be following behind you in a few years. Well of course, I would laugh and wave at him when he would be pulling out of his garage going to work. He would say one day I will be retiring. He was so excited when he bought his mercedes, he rang my doorbell and said, come over I want to show you something. I screamed when I saw the car, and he said get and look at the inside. I was surprised he said I am going to back it and drive down the street so you can get a feel how it rides. He said to me look you worked a long time, This is the guy's telephone number that I know at the Mercedes dealership you go see him and call and talk to him to give you a good deal. He said life is so short, your daughter is grown and married, do something for yourself. You only have one life, enjoy yourself. I really will never forget that day. He was a wonderful neighbor, friend, father and grandfather: he will be greatly missed by all.

“ The departure of our friend, Trieu, caused us to focus on this very special family whom we met about 45 years ago. We watched them mature as parents and watched their children grow into adulthood and start families of their own. They were tossed into a strange culture, had to learn a new language and learn to support themselves. Hardworking, self-sufficient, intelligent and resourceful, they developed into model U.S. citizens. We are so blessed to have known them. We grieve with their family and friends. I have a voice recording from Trieu on my phone from April 1. I'm going to keep it as long as I have my phone - to remember all he taught us about life and the delicious Vietnamese meals we shared through the years.

“ I first met Trieu as a teenager when he arrived in the U.S from Vietnam with his wife and three young children. It was an uncertain time for him as he had left everything behind and faced everything unknown. In the six months that he and his family stayed with ours, I came to know him as a quiet, reserved man who smiled and chuckled often. I can still picture him leaning against the wall of the living room with his hands behind his back, just smiling and listening to everyone's conversation before dinner. And I vividly remember the day we helped move his family into their first home, just six months after arriving in the states. Even as a teen, I recognized what a tremendous accomplishment that was for him. He now had his family in a home that he had provided for them. I could see his and his wife's happiness on that day.

Although distance has separated us for many years, I've always held Trieu close in my heart. This gentle man with quiet confidence. My dearest Trieu. I pray you are resting in God's loving arms, filled with His joy and peace that words can't describe. I love you, Trieu.

All my love to Trieu's children. I'm praying for you during this difficult time.
